GED® Test - Paper-Based Test Application

Paper based testing (PBT) is limited in NYS. Please contact a test center which offers PBT from those listed in the GED scheduling system. The test center you selected will provide you with this application form to complete and return to them. Do not mail this application to the New York State Education Department. When the test taker's PBT application is received by the test center, the test center will schedule testing for the test taker. The test taker will see a confirmation of the test date scheduled in their GED account (once the test session is scheduled). Expect approximately 2-3 weeks for processing and scheduling. Please check your GED account daily to confirm scheduling.

If applicable, indicate with an 'X' the subtest credits previously earned via testing or through Regents credits in the corresponding box below. The HSE Status Report provides information on which tests still need to be passed to earn a diploma: <https://eservices.nysed.gov/hse-status/status-report>
Do not complete this section if this is your first-time testing, or if you do not have any previously passed/credited subject tests. It is the candidate's responsibility to know which subtests to request.

Indicate whether the test(s) requested are needed in Spanish. Otherwise, they are administered in English.

If there are any days of the week that you are unavailable for testing due to religious, employment, or other obligations, list those days/dates here:

* RLA Note: If you passed Reading or Writing, but not both subtests, on the GED (2002-2013) or TASC (2014-2021), you will need to take and pass the full battery of the RLA to earn a High School Equivalency Diploma. The RLA incorporates both Reading and Writing. Reading and Writing are not available independently on the current version of the GED test.
